The Third Sunday After Epiphany

“Follow me, and I will make you fish for people”

Last week the disciples were invited to “come and see” (John 1:46). This week Jesus tells them, “Follow me, and I will make you fish for people” (Matthew 4:19) as they cast their nets into the sea. As we follow Jesus, he gives us a new sense of purpose and identity according to His divine blueprint for our lives as He leads us to have meaningful contact with others. Jesus helps us to take our skills and talents, and mold them to be of use to further His kingdom on the earth. No skill or talent is wasted in His divine economy!

I am not usually given to anecdotes in devotional writings, but in my own case, I used to do stained glass with my mother – 30 years ago in the 1990s. We worked very hard in those years making a living doing art and craft shows all over the state of Florida. It was a lot of very hard physical work, as we had to keep up with “inventory” to sell at the shows each week. When I was able, I quit doing glass and went back to school to finish my music degree, as I was tired of following in my mother’s footsteps and needed to live on my own terms developing and pursuing my musical path. Now that she has passed away, I am finding myself returning to glass making, but it is with a different mindset. Not only is it a way for me to honor her and continue with what I am now realizing is a legacy of creating beautiful works of art that bless and give joy to its recipients, but more importantly, I am discovering that people are being reached on a spiritual level through a simple little angel or other “suncatcher” that find its way to whoever needs one. The angels fly out the door as quickly as I make them. I am quickly discovering that it is a way to reach people, not just a means to procure a product. It is also a skill set that I did not envision utilizing again, but it now has gained new relevance and enjoyment in my life as I have the freedom to create in new ways that are not prescribed by someone else’s guidelines and at my own pace as the “Spirit” moves me.

Maybe you too, have skills or talents - ones that are being used now, or ones that you once had but have not used lately. Or perhaps you will be drawn into learning new ones. How can your skills be drawn upon, honed, resurrected or reinvented to touch others in your sphere in a new way for God’s purposes?

Looking to Deepen Your Faith?

The First Miracle - Turning Water Into Wine!

This week in Sunday School, we explored the story of Jesus' first miracle—turning water into wine at a wedding in Cana. Weddings in Jesus' time were important community celebrations, often lasting several days, and providing for guests was a matter of honor and hospitality. When the wine ran out, it created a moment of quiet crisis for the family hosting the celebration. Mary, Jesus' mother, noticed the need and brought it to Him, trusting that He could help. Without knowing how He would respond, she simply told the servants, "Do whatever He tells you."

Jesus instructed the servants to fill six large stone jars with water—jars that were normally used for ceremonial washing. The servants obeyed fully, filling the jars to the very top. When they drew from the jars and brought it to the master of the banquet, the water had become wine—remarkably, the best wine of the celebration. Though the master did not know where it came from, the servants and the disciples understood that something extraordinary had taken place. This quiet miracle revealed Jesus' power and marked the beginning of His public ministry, leading His disciples to place their trust in Him.

As we discussed this story, the children reflected on how Jesus chose to perform His first miracle not in a synagogue or before a crowd, but during an ordinary family celebration. They learned that Jesus cares deeply about the details of our lives and is present in moments of joy, need, and uncertainty. We also spent time talking about obedience and trust—how the servants listened to Jesus even when His instructions didn't make sense, and how their obedience made space for the miracle to occur.

In the coming weeks in Sunday School, we will continue exploring how Jesus reveals who He is through His actions and teachings. Building on this story, the children will discuss what it means to trust Jesus, listen for His guidance, and follow Him even when the path isn't always clear. Through Scripture, discussion, and hands-on activities, they will be encouraged to see how Jesus continues to work in quiet but powerful ways in our lives today.
